

Making decisions about your behaviour support plan

You have the right to be part of the decisions about your behaviour support plan.

You have the right to get support to make decisions about your plan.

There are 4 big decisions to make about your Behaviour Support Plan.

These decisions are:

1. Who should be in my Behaviour Support team

2. What information should people have about me

3. What will help me live a good life

4. Do I want to change my plan

Your behaviour support practitioner and your supporters will talk to you about these decisions.

If you are not happy about your behavior support plan you can speak with a

- friend
- family
- support worker

If you want to talk to someone else you can call an advocate.

An advocate is a person who helps you to speak up for your rights.

This website can help you find an advocate.

www.dana.org.au/find-an-advocate

To find out more about behaviour support you can go to this website.

www.decidingwithsupport.flinders.edu.au

